

SEEK FORUM ON CIA

A committee appointed by President Ray L. Heffner and composed of two students and one faculty member will attempt to provide a means by which the role of the Central Intelligence Agency can be examined, according to Eric D. Green '68, a member of the committee.

Elliot E. Maxwell '68 and Lyman B. Kirkpatrick, professor of political science, complete the committee which had its first meeting yesterday.

According to Mr. Green, the committee is presently concerned only with setting up a forum at which various viewpoints on the CIA could be discussed. He said no details on the forum have been arranged.

The committee will not be directly concerned with the questions of CIA recruitment on campus, Mr. Green explained, although he added, "I am sure they will be in the back of everyone's mind."

As to the likelihood of a representative of the CIA attending such a forum, President Heffner commented, "I don't know how much hope there is that they will." "It would be better," he added, "if the CIA did send a representative to the conference . . ."

President Heffner expressed the hope, however, that the forum might be a structure for getting the CIA to come to the campus to discuss its role.

The committee will not be immediately concerned with the questions of CIA recruitment on campus but rather the nature of the CIA, Mr. Green explained, because "the two are distinct, although related issues, and probably are best considered one at a time."

Since Michael J. Brennan, Dean of the Graduate School, is serving for the prosecution at today's UCSA hearings for those involved in the CIA recruitment demonstrations, his place on the Council will be taken by Henry Kucera, professor of Slavic Languages who was a member of the Magrath Committee and is also on the Graduate Council.
